Submission: My family and I are the residents of Breakfast Point which belongs to the Canada Bay Council for 8 years. Before moved in Breakfast Point, we were also lived in the area belonged to Canada Bay for another 8 years.

I didn't select to buy a home in other area even the property may be cheaper to be affordable, instead, my family prefer staying in Canada Bay area since we feel very comfortable, safe, clean environment, match our culture and life. I like this area.

We don't understand from which part the government sees the good future for Canada Bay if merge it to Auburn?

We don't understand what is the benefit for residents in Canada Bay area with this merge?

Better management for larger population?

Cheaper bills that we are to pay than now?

More save and peaceful life we are going to have?

Better for potential property value?

Two areas are totally different not only with their geo/human culture and life style, but also their different safety level and different financial status. Does the government just want us to share the burden?

The government should not close the door and do what you dream while ignore Canada Bay residents' willingness and sacrifice our needs.

I don't know if the government doesn't listen to the residents, and this could become true, should my family move away earlier or just wait? We feel anxious now.

We really worry our future life, our property value, our current good environment, and .....if the government make it happen.
