This is nothing more than the NSW Government increasing taxes by passing on the cost of maintaining this overpriced monolith. The excuse they are using is water security but this was designed as supplemental and for emergency use. With only 10-15% capacity to demand, we would be better increasing water pricing for high volume users. Not to mention the extraordinary electricity demand on an already overburdened NSW network. This is nothing more than window dressing for passing costs on to the consumer taxes. None of these plans are necessary nor make any sense. So much for democracy. The decision to do this is already done but you give us the opportunity to comment so we feel better about our so-called influence. I for one am tired of being treated like a fool.
