Submission date: 19 October 2022, 7:09PM RATES PEGGING The rate rise must be kept at or below the CPI, just because council has overspent or cannot control their costs does not mean that the rate payers have to bail out council. Example So, their fuel costs have gone up, so have mine. I have to live with it and make adjustments. So, the electricity has gone up, so has mine Further what about the communitys ability to pay. Those on fixed incomes, low-income families and alike cannot suddenly find and extra thousand or more a year. The rate peg must stay, permanent, no variations. If council cannot live within a budget, then they are not doing their job and should be replaced by and administrator.
