Hunter water recent lowered the maximum water storage level due to concerns over dam wall damage due to a potential earthquake, they have since been discharging the excess water effectively 'down the drain' but at the same time are spending huge amounts of money 'advertising' on radio/print media/road advertising on water saving methods and asking users to 'save water' hunter water have effectively reduced capacity and artificially caused a supply and demand position that allows them to seek a higher price for water due to 'artificial' reduced capacity, its hypocritical if not [REDACTED] at best by dumping water then paying for advertising about saving water whilst at the same time asking for an increase in water price due to hunter waters own negligence in maintenance
