Submission: After living in the Clarence Valley for forty years it has come quite apparent that the council has become disengaged from the community. The council is going backwards because the people they should be working for, just no longer care. If the Clarence Valley Council has a problem with money, then do what everyone else does, just stop spending what you don't have. If the council had any fortitude about it, they would be working very hard to reduce rates, not increase rates simply because they live in a spending bubble.
