I am located at [REDACTED]. I have paid the water fees since ownership in 2000. I maintain those fees as in my view they form part of the rights of the property for any future owner. I have never used water recovery from the creek in that time. I am never the less charged fees as if I was using it. There should be just an admin charge for registering and then a usage charge. In this way you can record no water taken and then any review of water usage would be accurate and not guessed and equally the financial burden of paying for water usage would fall on those using water. Passes the pub test and is a 'fair go'. Should be policy. Regards, [REDACTED].
