The government have decimated our rural communities by their water policies and to punish those who still have their water the government continues to increase fees and charges. It makes it unviable to use our irrigation water as we would like to especially after working hard to increase efficiencies. Governments should make the investor of the water, those with no farm land pay all of these charges. It is time that the government invested in the irrigation farmers remaining and stop punishing us by increasing fees and charges. The family farm is worth investing in not the corporation farms or investors. Nothing will change when those making the decisions are only concerned about the city, many of whom would never have travelled out of the city. Common sense is required but there is a real shortage of that in all levels of government. Very disappointing as we are a great country for now!!
