

Author name: Name suppressed

Date of submission: Tuesday, 5 November 2024

Your submission for this review:

Why are you charging existing customers for the development of new areas? Surely that cost should be covered or recouped by the services to those setting up the new development areas or the residents looking to live there. people in apartments or individuals with multiple properties (eg landlords) end up paying a disproportionately larger amount to cover costs in this case rather than a more modest increase in supply and larger increase in the consumption costs.