This is a little like strapping you to a tree and asking you if you prefer a thrashing with whip, burned in the buttocks with red hot poker or have fire-ants splashed across your back. What's with all the 'We might change things anyway' focus... depending on opportunities? We have to have access to water and sewage, and we have to pay for it, but it shouldn't be a commodity on the stock exchange, there to make money for the invested. Next, is it a department of 'Air'.. allocating cubic centimeters at a daily rate, unless you pay more. What possible use can we the users be in giving you our thoughts?
