

Author name: D. Bailey-Mckay

Date of submission: Saturday, July 25, 2015

Submission: Surry Hills Neighbourhood Centre opposes the force amalgamation of City of Sydney. This opposition stems from our ability to deliver localised and specialised services to the community and in the interest of the community we serve.

As the City of Sydney is in a sound financial position it is in a position to fund services such as ours. The centre receives funding and space in which we operate from the city. this allows us to deliver children, migrant and other community services. Council in it's current form has been willing to offer ongoing support in the delivery of these services. This allows us to identify existing service gaps in both social and community services.