25. How has the applicant accounted for climate change in developing the scheme?

Provide information as specified in the table

Describe the scheme-specific measures, objectives or strategies proposed to mitigate greenhouse gas emissions or adapt to climate change impacts or refer to information provided in response to other questions.

Water recycling is at its core a contributor to climate change mitigation. However, we do not intend at this point to answer questions with specific data for mitigation of greenhouse gas emissions in this scheme, except to say that:

Recycling water at the source mitigates the need for pumping water large distances to the buildings from the public water supply, and mitigates the need to pump or transfer wastewater large distances for treatment.

Modelling in other cities shows that there is a net energy benefit from on-site water re-use compared to other water conservation measures.

Aquacell continues to develop its technology to reduce energy consumption required to recycle water at the source.

Energy efficient lighting, ventilation.

The scheme supports reduced urban heat island effect, particularly in the event of drought, through re-using the treated water in irrigation.

Climate change adaptation has been a key consideration in the scheme design. Risks associated with climate change have been identified, and appropriate preventative and adaptive measures have been incorporated in the design to mitigate or minimise potential impacts. Please refer to Appendix 4 of Appendix Q25.0.
