

Author name: A. Jacob

Date of submission: Friday, 4 May 2018

Submission: I am shocked that the Independent Pricing and Regulatory Tribunal would even momentarily consider reducing the NSW solar feed-in tariff. It is already far below the retail price of electricity and allows the electricity companies to make a huge profit on reselling it. It is laughable that IPART would blame household generated electricity for lowering the price of electricity and punish them by lowering the feed-in tariff! Surely it is a good thing to have lower electricity prices and we should look elsewhere for the party or parties to blame for the high price of electricity.