

Author name: Anonymous

Date of submission: Friday, 15 June 2018

Submission: What can I say, Absolute Ballsup. If it aint broke, don't fix it. This is another government organised insulation scheme debacle. As a level 2 electrician, I currently have 5 houses waiting in the middle of winter for power because the meter has not been installed. I previously did it myself with no problems. Give metering back to the supply authority where it should be and sack the public servant who thought this was a good idea.