

Author name: B. Hines

Date of submission: Friday, 4 May 2018

Submission: "I have not had solar on for very long and have yet to receive an electricity bill ... I would think if all the people who have solar on their rooftops are very much contributing to every user of electricity having a drop in the price of their electricity, it would only be fair if the feed-in tariff was a decent price, I would think at least half of the price we pay per KWh and kept in line with all electricity price increases ... this would at least might encourage more people to use renewable energy ... I have seen first hand the mess coal mining has done to the Hunter Valley, it WAS some of the finest farming land in the state and now it is not much use for anything ... the mining companies try to hide the mess and rehabilitate the land ... the trouble with that is the dirt they have dug up as overburden has been buried for that long, it has not had the sun shining on it and it has no nutrients present in the soil for anything decent to grow ... it is dead dirt ...

Regards

Brommy Hines

..."