Submission: the supply of meters , in my opinion should have never been taken away from 'endeavour' and 'ausgrid' , and the installation should have been left with us , stringently trained and monitored level 2 service providers . things were simple then and were efficient . we now do a job and walk away leaving the client to the confusing job of trying to organize their meter which would have taken us 5 minutes to do and we leave the site with the power on , but instead is now taking months and causing people a lot of stress . i've had a temporary builders supply construction site wait 3 months for a meter and a couple of new homes the same .
