Submission: I operate a milk vending franchise, i cover 3 towns on the mid-north coast of NSW. There was NO litter to create this scheme in either of these towns as there is a separating waste disposal scheme already operating. I give about $150 a week to this scheme which amounts to almost $8000 a year which i think is a significant "windfall" to a select retailer. Why ... because not many people have a Pay Pal account. Not everyone wants to collect and store empty bottles to then drive a significant amount of kilometres to donate the "return" to a charity. Third option the "retailer". I want to know why it is Woolworths? Why not Coles or Aldi?, why any retailer? Why does this software not allow me to start a new paragraph? Why are there a NUMBER of the same so called collectables NOT in the scheme? Such as bottled water, fruit juice containers. Why does it take until December for this to be even reviewed?
