

Author name: M. Rynn

Date of submission: Monday, 7 May 2018

Submission: It is the absolute distributed nature of solar energy, that its uptake depends on the total distributed surface area of energy capture devices. Contributors to this surface area energy output need to be acknowledged by a mandatory minimum economic price for their energy, to avoid market distortions and incentives for disconnection by increasing use of battery storage.