A fair price for clean energy such as solar is essential to encourage more people to install and use solar power. My son installed a solar system last year for all the right reasons and says that he hardly gets anything back. He called it a roort. It's time the government got serious about renewable energy as they, as well as us know that coal pollutes, is a finite resource and burning coal is bad for health, whereas energy from the sun is constant and non polluting. Jobs will be lost in the dirty energy production and increased in clean energy production.
