Submission: I wish to express my strong objection to any recommended reduction of the solar FiT benchmark. This would only send the wrong signal to the big power companies AGL, Origin and Energy Australia who manipulate the wholesale price of power to their advantage since they are also generators. They dominate the retail market, and their customer base is in general too lazy, gullible, uninformed or deceived by fake rebates, so they would not switch to retailers who offer better conditions or FiTs. For years we had to endure the 'fake news' by the state government, that solar subsidies have increased power prices for the other consumers via the 'carbon tax', however the prices have not come down after abolishing the carbon tax, on the contrary. Solar power has been responsible for a reduction of power prices. Solar owners should be rewarded for it, not punished or discouraged.
