

Author name: Anonymous

Date of submission: Monday, 12 November 2012

Submission: Licenses can be a helpful regulatory tool in limiting "access to the market" to "suitable, reputable and qualified" parties (where the licenses required the holders to have appropriate qualifications, good character, etc - thereby protecting the community from unethical, dodgy, unsafe and/or unqualified parties. Licenses can also help the consumer identify ethical, safe and qualified suppliers of goods and services, permitting consumers to make "informed choices".