Submission: Lets start with good thing:

The only good thing about this proposal is the fare would be based on using just one mode of transport from origin to final destination and this was major drawback when Opal started.

Bad points:

Do you REALLY want people to use public transport on weekends than why you are increasing fare????? I am using it only because it cost me $2:50 on Sunday if it gonna cost me 5 or more I would switch back to my car and family will jump before me because they save more in car. If it is affordable than reduce for Saturday as proposed but if you change for Sunday than good luck for your intentionally wrong try.

Paper ticket were more cheaper for many of us even they cost to print as compare to Opal, When Opal started I was paying $48 for my week and due to Opal I have to pay 55+ and now you gonna increase it again and lying as usual "Technology and update will reduce the total cost for commuters".

How many people take journey more than 8-10 in a week???? what do you think Public transport is a fun ride and people love to stay on board through out the day and weekends instead of doing fun or relaxing at home 1-2 days after hard work. So what is the point of free journey after 10 journeys ... it is a serious joke.

One side every Govt. wants people to use public transport more to reduce greenhouse gases and less congestion on roads and blah blah blah but in reality every step taken in public transport is less tempting for individuals to switch from car to public transport. Why would any use it if they have to pay more in money and time and trouble???

It is in best interest of every human being: Public transport should not be here for profit, it should be non profit organisation and run on no profit no loss (I don't know it is or not, I am guessing it is not) so more and more people can afford it and prefer it to use than private cars. I have a friend who ride his push bike 15kms every day does not matter what is the weather look alike and he is working full time from last 7 years with no dependent still he can not afford to have a car or shame so called Public transport and forced to run a bike every day year after year...

Anyways it was and it is and only hope it will not be non human. Public means public not just middle class.
