

Author name: Anonymous

Date of submission: Wednesday, 23 December 2015

Submission: I don't think to replace the $2.50 Sunday cap to $7.50 Weekend cap is a good idea.

The idea of the $2.50 Sunday cap is to encourage family to get out and do things together. And it has been successful in term of lots of families getting out and about. You only need to see the number of people on the train on a Sunday to see the effect of this, lots of families. This encourage family bonding, exploration and lots of health benefit. The new $7.50 weekend cap is too expensive for families, especially if it is a big family. When we go out, the travelling fares would be nearly $50 and then food and drink. With everything is going up in price now a day, this would stress out our limited budget.

With our busy lifestyle and lots of pressure, I think you should keep the $2.50 Sunday cap. It is a release for the financial pressure for families. It would strengthen family bonding, better lifestyle and in turn a better society. Thank you for your consideration.