

Author name: Anonymous

Date of submission: Thursday, 24 December 2015

Submission: I think the current mode of pricing is very good and quite fair. The former transport Minister Ms Berejiklian was quite happy for people to game the system and use the first 8 trip on the cheapest trip possible. Yet now the Government are making iPART take the fall for wanting to increase travel costs.

If there are such big issues, then bring back the weekly or monthly or even annual ticket, because I was definitely paying less when those tickets were still available.

To actually encourage people to use more public transport, it is important to ensure public transport costs are relatively low and have reliable and frequent transport system.

If you change the rule of 8 trips then free, or the fact that weekends caps becomes more expensive, you will lose a lot more passengers, and put increasing stress on the roads.