

Author name: Anonymous

Date of submission: Wednesday, 3 February 2016

Submission: Hi Team,

I catch the Manly ferry and a train as my daily commute to work.

My only question with the system is this. Why are we discounting public transport on Sunday?

I cap out my opal card so that my Friday, Saturday and Sunday are free anyway. The Manly ferry is regularly overloaded on the weekends with a high percentage of tourists as opposed to during the week when price is standard and spaces available. Why are we discounting public transport to visitors/tourist on Sundays? Have you been anywhere else in the world where this is the case? I have travelled for the better part of 10 years and never have a seen or heard of such an absurd pricing plan. I pay to live in this city and I'm charged full price for services but it seems that visitors don't need to pay the full price? Charge the full fares on Sunday and watch your coffers fill so price increases aren't passed along to your daily commuters.

Thanks for your time and hopefully someone reads this.

Kind regards,

Manly Resident