

Author name: Anonymous

Date of submission: Thursday, 4 February 2016

Submission: Increasing the Seniors travel card rate will mean a lot of Seniors won't be able to afford to use public transport. I would think the majority of Seniors travel out of peak times so are no burden on the stretched public transport system. Increasing the rate from $2.50 to $3.50 is exorbitant and not in line with a possible fairer smaller increase.

The increase in penalties for cyclists shows the government to be more interested in raising revenue for car usage than encouraging people to use a more sustainable and healthy form of transport. We really are going backwards in this respect.