Submission: My comment is coming from a self funded retirees perspective.

These increases would have implications effecting the method of travel for people like ourselves in planning our movement about such as various weekly travel to the city and outer suburbs. We would simply use our car, as it would more cost effective to do so. I am sure a great number of others like us will do the same, thus encouraging more vehicles on the road, adding to more congestion.

My wife and I are totally self reliant and have never avoided paying our taxes all through our lives , and as such we strongly object to these increases.
