Submission: Hi guys - get real:

Many seniors use public transport to get to places where they do voluntary work. Not only are we contributing time and effort, we are doing essential work that would otherwise be done by paid staff.

I work at Taronga Zoo for example. Try and run an enterprise like that with only paid staff. At least when we use public transport that is subsidised and is some compensation for the time we give.

Please think clearly about this. Instead of capping the Opal per day, as a compromise cap it for example at 3 return trips a week on weekdays.
