

My concern over water pricing is that it appears to have been forgotten that water is essential to life. It follows it should be available to all at the lowest cost. The Government's insistence that provision of this essential item should produce a profit, by way of paying it dividends, increases the cost. This is a burden on those with low or sometimes no income.