

Author name: H. Jonsson

Date of submission: Thursday, 4 February 2016

Submission: Hi

Why change a simple approach to fares with a complex structure?

Why stop the encouraged weekend travel on public transport which keeps motor vehicles off the road and in that is environmentally friendly?

Why dissuade healthy travel to more remote places and in doing that stopping people from supporting businesses in those remote places. Why undo brilliant work and innovative ideas from a team, which was ultimately responsible to the then minister Gladys Berejiklian?

I propose to let the existing system stay. Traveling at low /no cost on a Sunday is supporting a healthy life style, whilst staying home due to unaffordability or even just an adverse impact on the personal/family budget is not supportive to the idea of public transport.

Please rethink or even better, do not change!

Kind regards