Submission: As a retired person living on a limited income I greatly appreciate the current cost structure of the Seniors Opal card. It means I can use public transport to get around rather than use my car. This in turn means fewer cars on the road and less pollution. I can understand raising the cost a little, but raising it to $9 is an extreme measure that will mean many seniors will not be able to afford to go out. They will be trapped in their houses and units, not participating in community life, and not getting exercise or social interaction. This proposal of a maximum of $9 per day discriminates against those seniors who can't afford to live near central services, and is an extreme and ill considered proposal.
