Submission: Dear Sir/Madam,

I am a retired Senior living on my own savings. Contrary to the prevailing public attitude on self-funded retirees I have a tight budget. I often buy second hand clothes, meet friends for coffee rather than a meal and most of my entertainment is through free public events.

I worked hard all my life in a poorly paid but highly responsible job for NSW Health. The only concession I receive from this government is affordable public transport. At the moment I do not have to consider if I can afford the cost of getting out. If the cost of my transport suddenly rises to $9 per day, that is $63 per week. I can't possibly afford that and would have to spend more time at home alone. is this what the Baird Government is to be remembered for? isolating its Senior Citizens?

Please do not follow through with this unfair recommendation made by men in suits with No IDEA what it is like to live on a limited income,

Many Thanks,

Kathryn Green
