Submission: Having spent many years living in Cooranbong and attending the schools and college I am appalled at the Seventh-day Adventist church, along with the developer, applying for a licence to build a sewage/water recycling utility near the centre of the town. No matter how wonderful this technology might be it is entirely unsuitable to place large tanks, buildings and accessories surrounded by high fences and lights that will take up approximately three and a half acres of land in the middle of Cooranbong. My parents recently built a house not far from 617 Freemans Drive and they are shocked at the possible development.
