Submission: It sounds like IPART is living in the world of the 1% and has no idea of the impact on pensioners and self funded retirees.

If the main object is to squeeze money out of those who can least afford it fine - but there will be negative social consequences. Of course IPART has no accountability for negative social consequences - those who can fight back least are the ones who will live with the consequences.

Please do not do this and send us further down the road of the US and UK where marginalisation and poverty has increased significantly since the on,y voice heard is the money voice.

Regards,

Maire
