

Author name: M. Hanna

Date of submission: Wednesday, 21 May 2014

Submission: The increase to gas prices is not warranted, further more it is on the back of multiple gas price increases over the last few years, all of which are outside the rate of standard CPI increases.

I do not understand how any organisation can truthfully state these cost increases are absolutely necessary.

Can you provide explanation on reasoning, further more , if costs of goods increase I would expect something in return as a consumer by way of value, what additional value is being presented back to myself ?