

Sent: Wednesday, 5 November 2008 9:32 PM

Subject: Ticket Price

To Whom It May Concern,

Just like most (probably all commuters), I disagree with the price increase. The reason being, with the economy in its current condition, many workers might get sacked if the economy isn't improving...its hard enough for us commuters paying its existing price, let alone paying the price increases for the next years. It really is not the time for an increase. If I can offer a suggestion, what if...instead of increasing the ticket price, Cityrail find other win-win solution? Such as putting advertising in trains?? How about making the back of passenger seats as advertising space?? Commuters WILL read them because we got nothing else better to do. And with the income from these ads, Cityrail might not need to increase their ticket price anymore....therefore benefit both ways.

Please consider my suggestion....I really think this is the best solution...Thank you