Your power price increase fills me with dread.

Living on a pension is almost impossible already, especially as a widow (ie single age pensioner) now it will be impossible. I barely used my heater last winter mostly only putting it on after 8pm. This year I probably won't be able to do that! As for the increase in pension that was expected and did not happen in February, it might have made our lot less miserable. Those in politics have no idea and do not care a bit, on your salaries why should you care and you don't!
