Subject: Electricity Price

To whom to may concern

After having spent 27 years in the electricity supply industry and taking into account the price reduction in fossil fuel, couple this to a subdued wage increase I can see no reasonable excuse for an increase in electricity costs, if you add this burden to the already struggling self-funded retiree who at this time is facing a dramatic reduction in disposable income you will see a sudden increase in the amount of people seeking welfare.

Commercial interests are not the only item to be considered when looking at prices.
