

Alan Lee
03/04/2006

Dear Madam.Sir,

People walk past gate for free in rail stations

I recently move to Epping and travel every work day between Central and Epping.
Surprisingly, what I found out these few months is that a lot of people did not have any ticket. They walk pass the “open” gates at both stations without anyone checking the tickets.

A few occasions, the gate was closed at Epping station and some people got caught. They convinced the station staff to let them go out and buy the tickets. Not surprisingly, then they ran and gone.

I think if the fare revenue of these people has been collected, the revenue of Rail Corp may have increased by 5-10%. Then no need for the fare increase.

Alan Lee