Fare Review

29/03/06

To whom it may concern,

As a University Student I have been buying a weekly ticket each week to get to Uni. I believe the pricings for train tickets are fine as they are and should not be raised 14% off peak hours or 3% peak hours.

Being a passenger of public transport for the last 10 years, I have not seen any considerable increase in the quality of the train system reasonable enough to call for a fare rise. Until they are able to get more trains running on time (Just like in Japan), air conditioning and more frequent trains with more carriages to provide room for all the passengers during peak hours, the ticket prices should stay just as they are.

Yours faithfully,
Pearl Lai
