

Subject: ferry prices

Dear IPART,

I believe I have until Friday to comment on the ferry price rise proposal.

I am against the idea of different prices for locals and for tourists, I think it leaves tourists with a feeling of being milked, which is a negative reaction and not how we want our guests to feel.

I am sure the lower numbers of commuters from Manly to Sydney is directly proportional to the lack of availability of free parking, lowering the fares may attract these commuters back if they can park at a reasonable cost.

I have worked in many industries and have seen many companies fail because they put up prices when custom was falling... custom just kept on falling as prices became less and less attractive.

With thanks,

Jozy Sutton
