

Email

8 July 2005 04:25 PM

To: ipart@ipart.nsw.gov.au

Subject: rise in water bills

Dear Sir/Madam,

I have a few doubts about the implementation of the rise in water bills as proposed:

How will it affect people living in old unit blocks with only 1 water meter. I wonder if there is a fair way to check which household uses less/more than 400 kilo litres per year. Some units have up to six occupants while others live alone.

Would it not be unfair if households who have been careful using water are not eligible for a 12% discount, because they are using the bare minimum, while others who have been wasteful do get the discount.

Thanks for your attention to this matter. It might need some more fine tuning.