
28 October 2008

Subject: Increase in train fares

Hi

It is a little ridiculous even considering to increase train fares. The trains are always congested, so travelling in them is uncomfortable, hot and stuffy during summer. The trains are often late. The road (M5) traffic is horrendous, because more people are choosing to drive rather than facing the price and uncomfortable travelling conditions via the train.

So I vote NO FARE increase, unless you are going to improve the product/service we are paying for.

The underground railway between the City and (I believe) Penrith area which is being discussed, is something that is needed between City and Sydney South West (Campbelltown).

Thanks for taking the time to reading this.

Kind Regards,
E Hendricks