Subject: electricity prices rise by up to $727 more in 2013. Gas up to $76 by 2013

To the IPART Bureaucrats

Independent Pricing and Regulatory Tribunal (IPART) has released its draft determination into gas prices. For AGL, which has the majority of gas customers in New South Wales, a typical annual residential bill will increase from July by $18 dollars and $76 by the year 2013.

The State's pricing regulator, the Independent Pricing and Regulatory Tribunal (IPART) recommended that electricity prices rise by up$727 in 2013., including inflation, over three years. -- Sydney Morning Herald.

Why are you IPART people making such huge price increases? It seems that you are biased towards helping private enterprise. You want the profit of the private enterprises to be as high as possible.

You bureaucrats on large incomes just do not care about the difficulties that the lower paid people, the wage earners, have in living on a low income.

The NSW Labor Government is just as disinterested in the people. It is working for big business. That is why it lets you IPART people drive up the cost of electricity and gas to exorbitant heights.

I am angry, and I am frustrated, because as an ordinary wage earner I can do nothing to stop you people.

It is only 11 months now till the next State election when we get rid of this rotten Labor Government, but unfortunately, you IPART bureaucrats will remain, and continue to do your dirty work.
